The spiritual disciplines of corporate discernment are grounded in the faith that we can perceive and affirm God's guidance for the gathered community. Our experience of worship undergirds our understanding of reaching unity in the Spirit, a sense of the meeting that sometimes comes as an unexpected blessing when we have labored hard to discern our way. As we listen to each other and seek together for Divine guidance, we can affirm the unity that enables us to respond faithfully.

*"Corporate Discernment in Meetings for Business,"
New England Yearly Meeting Faith and Practice revision*

Quakers have developed unique ways of worship, decision-making, discernment, and community-building. The meeting for business is a time and place for all members to share in caring for the total life of the meeting. All of the participants are leaders, seeking together the guidance of the divine. The clerk of the meeting or the committee convenor is a servant of the group. Our primary purpose is not to "make decisions," but to find the truth of our particular community of faith.

Meeting for business is most effective when everyone takes responsibility for leadership. This workshop will be an opportunity for Friends to explore together how all members can help the meeting faithfully consider the business before them in a centered and worshipful manner, whether in monthly meeting for business or in doing the work of the committees.

Nancy and David Haines are members of Wellesley (MA) Monthly Meeting. Each has served as clerk of Wellesley Meeting and has clerked various monthly meeting and yearly meeting committees. For three years, while serving as clerk of the New England Yearly Meeting Permanent Board, Nancy was co-leader of the yearly meeting's annual workshop on clerking skills. David served as clerk of NEYM's Archive Committee for more than ten years, so he knows the importance of careful recording. He also brings a special concern for eldering and nurturing gifts of leadership and ministry. Together, they clerked the FGC Gathering Committee for the 2012 Gathering in Rhode Island.
