Heart Spirituality

Thinking Spirituality
1. Thinking Spirituality
   Goal: Tries to make sense of mystical experience (often that of others), to name it and make it something to communicate to others. Content is primary; focus on congruence of thought and belief. Highly language oriented.
   Emphasis: More study groups, better information on faith and practice, Quaker history, theological reflection.
   Examples: Margaret Fell, Robert Barclay, Rufus Jones.
   Risks: Overintellectualism and dogmatism. (Many of us came to Friends to avoid the excesses of this type of spirituality, so we tend to react strongly against any trace of this, becoming anti-intellectual and experience-only in orientation.)

2. Heart Spirituality
   Goal: Seeks transformation and renewal of self.
   Emphasis: Community, shared experience, evangelism, warmth of feeling, energy, joy, enthusiasm.
   Example: George Fox.
   Risks: Xenophobic attitude that we have the answer and that it is us against the world.

3. Mystic Spirituality
   Goal: Seeks union with God, renewal of the inner life.
   Emphasis: The journey of movement towards union with God. Hearing from God is more important than speaking to God. Practices simplicity to hear the inner voice. Contemplative, introspective, intuitive. Once comfortable with who they are, they are more prone to laugh than any other type.
   Examples: Isaac Pennington, James Naylor.
   Risks: Quietism – retreat from the world and external reality.

4. Activist Spirituality
   Goal: To transform this world into the Kingdom of God.
   Emphasis: Seeks through personal crusade to regenerate society, rectify the wrongs of this world. Action is their spiritual expression (though they might not view it as such.) Spiritually active visionaries.
   Examples: John Woolman, Lucretia Mott.
   Risks: A moralistic and unrelenting tunnel vision.
